Options for Stabilizing Lake Shoreline Causes Lively Debate at Council Meeting

by Sid Kastner

At the regular city council meeting of Monday, January 13, the council members dealt mostly with local or domestic issues such as preservation of the lake shore, licensing or approval of commercial establishments within the city area and planning for the city budget. Several new police officers were also sworn in.

At the start of the meeting, the oath of office was administered by Mayor Gil Weidenfeld to five police officer candidates who have completed their training at area police academies: Alan Caho, Matthew Carr and Franklin Long are graduates of Baltimore City Police Academy, and Maria Arthur and David Buerger trained at Montgomery County Police Academy. The new recruits, introduced by police chief Frank Hutson, in turn introduced their families to the council and assemblage.

Greenbelt Lake Shore

The shoreline of the lake just north of the small peninsula, adjacent to homes along Lakeside— or rather how to deal with it— has been a source of concern to some residents of the area, who have taken varying positions on the matter. Some feel erosion has taken place, while others consider erosion to be minimal, or if present to be the city's responsibility. One resident in the former category, Cliff Brown, has constructed a retaining wall at the shore behind his property. This action has led to a directive by the city to remove the wall, followed by a petition from the resident to continue construction on the ground that it is necessary to prevent erosion.

The city staff, in its memorandum to council, continued to recommend that the privately-initiated work be stopped; that the wall be removed if it caused problems, and that the shoreline be revegetated with trees and shrubs.

Council therefore asked for advice on this fairly technical matter from several people, including Al Geiger, a Lakeside resident who has been employed by the Soil Conservation Service as a hydrology (water flow) engineer. Geiger explained that wherever vegetation is removed from the shoreline, there will be some erosion, as can be observed at several points around the lake. This erosion in the present case is due mainly to two causes: waves produced by the long "fetch" of water whipped up by wind, and transfer of energy from the flowing water coming into the lake. The latter effect is also the cause of a noticeable "plunge pool" at the spot in question, consisting of an eddy whirling around a central bank of deposited sediment.

In reply to questions from council members as to what form a possible solution might take, Geiger expressed the opinion that the situation was not a critical one. He suggested leaving the shore untouched—"keeping traffic off it"—and planting aquatic vegetation such as cat tails. The latter approach of putting vegetation in the water would help to absorb some of the water's destructive energy, he said. He also suggested that part of a working solution was to keep sediment out of the lake so that the "plunge pool" with its associated eddy would not grow more pronounced.

Manager James Giese gave the staff's view that there was not significant erosion in the natural shoreline. He felt that only vegetation was necessary to preserve a stable shoreline. In reply to questions from councilmember Antoinette Bram about the resident-constructed retaining wall, Giese's opinion was that it was "quite useless" but he did not intend to remove it at this time. Steve Curtis, from the floor, argued on the other hand that the lake was "not a natural creation" and if left to itself would degrade so that a manmade solution such as riprap might be necessary. Brown, the resident who built the retaining wall, speaking on his own behalf, said that the shoreline was being undercut by the scouring action of lake water rebounding from incoming channel water. He stated, "I think you need to get to the source of the problem (which is) not a surface problem."

The extent of such undercutting was disputed by Giese, Geiger and Nancy Neupert, who said she had observed the shore at lowered water level and could not see undercutting. Neupert brought up some further questions in connection with the retaining wall. She expressed concern that the artificial wall might be affected by freezing and break-up, releasing its constituent concrete cylinders into the lake; Giese replied that ice can be damaging but this was not a likely problem. With regard to the value of vegetation as a solution to erosion, Neupert gave her opinion as a botanist that "there are all kinds of plants that could be used on the shore" to stop erosion. She raised last the principle that private citizens should not undertake their own developments on public land. Weidenfeld noted that "council has agreed that (this) principle should hold."

Parcels 1, 2 Rezoning Hearing Is Friday

by Betsy Likowski

Prince Georges Zoning Hearing Examiner Barry Cramp has denied a request by the applicants to "remand or continue to an indefinite time" Cramp's hearing of the longstanding rezoning applications for Parcels 1 and 2. The hearing remains scheduled for Friday, Jan. 24, at 11 a.m. at the County Administration Building in Upper Marlboro.

Russell W. Shipley, attorney for applicants Charles Bresler, Theodore Lerner and Associates asked for the delay until current negotiations with city council for disposition of the land can be completed. Cramp, denying the request without explanation, told Shipley in the denial letter, "It is suggested that you continue your dialogue with the city throughout the hearing of these cases." (Shipley has told the city he will ask tomorrow for a 30-day delay. The city should know by 9:30 a.m. if he is successful.)

The applications involve 112 acres of Parcels 1 and 2, land between the Baltimore-Washington Parkway and Greenbelt Homes, Inc. property. About 102 acres (Parcel 1) are located north of Northway extended and 10 acres (Parcel 2) are between Hamilton Place and Gardenway.

Options Proposed to City

At a January 8 work session with city council, Shipley put forth a variety of options by which the city could acquire parts or all of Parcels 1 and 2 as well as county land formerly owned by the Board of Education. Among possible options suggested by Shipley were: 1) donation to the city of the 102-acre Parcel 1, undisputed claim by the city to the former school board property (72 acres), and in return city support for townhouse zoning for the 10-acre Parcel 2; 2) sale of both parcels to the city; 3) preparation of a plan for use of the land to include some private development, to be done by a land planner chosen by the city and paid by the owners of the land; 4) donation by the owners of half the land to the city in return for development rights to the other half; 5) other options to be suggested by city officials.

Shipley said there are problems in developing Parcel 1, including limited access (from Plateau Place and possibly Laurel Hill Road) and the high cost of providing sewers ($2¼ to $5 million). The original rezoning applications were filed in the early 1960's. Shipley said the subsequent delays are "frustrating" to the landowners who have come to the point where they would donate "half or all of the 102 acres to the city" if agreement could be reached on the remaining property owned by them in the city.

Delegates Show Optimism On S&L, Worry on Schools

by Andrea Edie

Resolution of the savings and loan crisis and funding for education were the two major issues discussed at the January 10 Open Door meeting for Greenbelt constituents hosted by State Senator Leo F. Green and Delegates Gerard F. Devlin, Joan B. Pitkin and Charles J. Ryan.

"We can see the light at the end of the tunnel," Green said, referring to Governor Harry Hughes' plan released on January 10.

"The governor's program is temperate and slow. We'd like it faster, but it is workable," Devlin said.

Green said that the reason the governor did not come out with his plan sooner was because he was trying to sell Community and First Maryland.

The highlights of the governor's comprehensive plan to end the savings and loan crisis consist of four key elements (reprinted here from the governor's January 10 speech to the General Assembly):

1. The $82,000,000 of liquid assets from the Maryland Deposit Insurance Fund will be used to provide funding to consummate the purchase of Community.

2. The $70 million balance of the existing bonding authority will be utilized as a bond anticipation note to the purchaser of Community.

3. Interfund borrowing will provide $100 million from the Transportation Trust Fund, contingent upon legislation requiring a pay-back from the General Fund over a four-year period. Higher revenues created $55 million in unprogrammed funds; and a complex and creative security exchange has provided the Trust Fund an additional $45 million in cash. This $100 million can be loaned without affecting the estate's Transportation Plan, provided that repayment is made over fiscal years '87-'90.

4. The governor will also request general fund appropriations totaling $70 million in the upcoming budget. Of that amount, $55 million will be a 1986 deficiency. The remaining will be a 1987 appropriation to a designated contingency reserve.

The governor is "asking the legislature to advance these funds in the full expectation that most of the money will be recouped through the sale of assets and

County Urges President to Be Fair on Metro

The Prince Georges County Council has notified the Reagan administration of its opposition to a proposal to cut-off Federal funding for construction of the Metro system.

Copies of the letter, jointly signed by council and County Executive Parris N. Glendening, were sent to state representatives and senators in Congress and political leaders in other Washington area jurisdictions. The letter was presented by Council Member James M. Herl.

The letter states that council "... is alarmed at press reports that the administration is considering a total cut-off of federal funding for construction of the Washington Metro system."

It said "we recognize that the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings act could have tumultuous repercussions and force severe actions by both the President and Congress, but it would seem that using the meat cleaver approach on fundamental domestic programs would be an over reaction at this time."

"We trust the President will honor the long standing commitment that the federal government has made to the jurisdictions of the Washington metropolitan area to work toward completion of the Metro system."

"Needless to say, Washington is unique among Metropolitan regions of this nation. Because of the concentration of federal activities in the area, the rapid transit system provides a vital transportation service to tens of thousands of government em-

The letter concluded that council recognizes Gramm-Rudman "... requires a more introspective and critical review of federal expenditures, but urge you to maintain a reasoned and even-handed approach toward basic programs, such as Metro construction, which might be abruptly terminated absent federal participation."

Community Church Begins Improvements Fund Drive

Members of Greenbelt Community Church voted on January 19 to undertake a major fund-raising campaign to repair and improve the church's facilities. The "Alive and Building" plan, as the campaign is known, will provide for needed roof repairs, handicapped access, better lighting, fresh paint, and a host of other features. In addition to the sanctuary, education and office spaces, the church's social hall, used by community groups for nearly 300 meetings each year, will be significantly upgraded.

The main building, built in 1949, will retain its straightforward character while being prepared for another 40 years of service in Greenbelt. The church will function without interruption as improvements are made. Where possible, members will do the work themselves.

The "Alive and Building" plan calls for raising $40,000 in gifts and three-year pledges by March 2. "When we have the necessary financial backing of the congregation and community, we'll proceed, but not before," explained Pastor Dan Hamlin.

Members and friends of Greenbelt Community Church are encouraged to contact the church office at 474-6171 or write to the church office at 1 Hillside Road, Greenbelt, Md. 20770 for more information about the "Alive and Building" campaign.

Greenbelt Museum Drive Continues; Seeks Funds

As of mid-January, the Friends of the Greenbelt Museum had 96 paid members and had collected about $4500. "I think we're going to exceed our membership goal (of 100 members)," said Dorothy Sucher, President of FOGM. "There seems to be a lot of enthusiastic support out there for the idea of a local history museum in Greenbelt," she said, "which after all has been named a historic district and has a number of unique features."

The drive, however, is currently less than fifty per cent on its way to its dollar goal of $10,000. "Thank goodness we set our goal at $10,000 and not $100,000 — as was erroneously reported in the News Review a few weeks ago! I'd like to urge those people — and I know they're out there — who haven't gotten around yet to joining FOGM, to send in their tax deductible memberships today," Sucher said. (A membership/contribution form appears on this page.)

The five-month period set for the membership and fund drive is already one quarter over, Sucher pointed out. The goal is to increase support and establish an operating fund for the museum, which is slated to open in 1987 as part of Greenbelt's 50th anniversary celebration.

Greenbelt is discussed in many architectural and city planning books as one of the earliest examples of city planning in the United States. Its ongoing tradition of strong cooperatives, such as GHI, the nursery school and the Greenbelt News Review is very unusual. These are some of the themes and special history that will be commemorated in the museum, Sucher said.

ROOSEVELT CENTER ASSOCIATION MEETS

The Roosevelt Center Association met at 7:30 p.m. on Monday, January 13 in the Group Room of Behavior Service Consultants, Inc.

In addition to organizational issues such as membership, budget and meeting times, further work was done on developing a logo for the Roosevelt Center for use in ads and in signage. Collaboration with the City on the logo was discussed.

The meeting schedule was adjusted so that starting in February the association will meet the second Thursday and the last Monday of each month. The Thursday meetings will be at 7:30 a.m. to 8:30 a.m. at the City Council Room and the Monday meetings will be 7:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. at Behavior Service Consultants, Inc. After our January 23 meeting at 7:30 a.m. at the City Council room our next meetings will be Thursday, February 13 at 7:30 a.m. Monday, February 24, 7:30 p.m.

Rules for Skating at Lake

The Greenbelt Lake is open for ice skating when weather conditions are favorable. In order to provide a wholesome, safe activity, the city has developed certain guidelines that should be followed. Information about the condition of the ice at the lake is available by calling the Greenbelt Police Department, 474-7200.

It is impossible to continually test ice thickness over all areas of the lake, so skating will always be at the risk of the participant. Recommended areas of skating are the shore lines and the bay around the peninsula. The lake around the dam and spillway should be avoided, as open water is usually found in these areas. Skaters should also avoid gathering in groups on the ice. No fires will be allowed at the lake except those provided by the city because of the scarcity of firewood and danger from brush fires.

The Recreation Department will attempt to provide assistance at the lake during weekend days from 4 p.m. until dark and on holidays, Saturdays and Sundays from 9 a.m. to dark.

All skaters and parents should keep in mind the dangers involved in ice sports. A person who falls through the ice is in danger of drowning and freezing if he is not cared for immediately.

At this time, the ice on the lake is NOT safe enough to warrant skating. This notice will remain in effect until otherwise informed. NO SKATING signs have been placed around the Lake area and in visible locations.

Exchange Students Need Host Homes

by Sue Reitzig

Your family can explore the world without leaving home by welcoming an AFS foreign exchange student into your home for a year and learning about another culture firsthand. Your family will gain a new closeness as you welcome a new family member.

AFS International/Intercultural Programs, the leading non-profit international exchange organization, will bring students from 68 countries to the U.S. this year. The student will attend high school here, but you don't have to be a parent of high-school-age children to apply. Single parents are eligible too. If you have the desire to host, don't exclude yourself because your lifestyle is busy or your home is not spacious. Somewhere in the world is an AFS student who's right for you.

AFS students at Eleanor Roosevelt High School this year are Claudia Bertram from Bolivia who's living in New Carrollton; Marie Bestion from France who lives in Laurel; Sylvia Markulin from Switzerland who lives in Lanham; and Nanda Stelling from The Netherlands who lives in Greenbelt.

Your family can apply to host an AFS student by calling the Eleanor Roosevelt Chapter President at 441-2464 in the evenings. Please call as soon as possible, since there are spring deadlines for applying to host an AFS student.

NOTE: THIS IS A PRELIMINARY AGENDA - SUBJECT TO CHANGE

Ridge Road Home Owners Oppose Road Improvements Required by City Policy

by Diane Oberg

The Greenbelt City Council was faced with a varied menu of issues at its January 13 meeting. The agenda included several development issues, including a review of the Ridge Road improvements provided for in a 1980 ordinance, two cable television issues and enough meetings to fill council's calendar for the next two months.

Ridge Road Improvements

When the land on both sides of Ridge Road between Boxwood Village at the top of Lastner Lane and GHI was subdivided, council provided for bringing Ridge Road up to city standards with a 36-foot width and curbs and gutters on each side. However, it was decided that a sidewalk would be required on one side of the street. Lot owners consented to the city's imposing a special assessment to pay for the improvements with the improvements to be undertaken upon issuance of a building permit for the last lot or after five years, whichever occurred first. The five years have now expired and council, under the ordinance, is to determine whether to begin the improvements or defer the work for a specified period.

Bob Spear, representing the eight affected property owners, said the owners now agree that the improvements are not needed. According to Spear, there is not enough pedestrian or vehicular traffic to justify such improvements. Spear also cited the loss of trees that would occur under the plan. He stated the owners' understanding that the improvements were supposed to benefit the property owners and said that the owners wanted to inform council that the "affected property owners do not want their properties so improved."

Mayor Gil Weidenfeld, one of the affected owners, did not participate in the discussion. Councilmember Antoinette M. Bram expressed her concern that the Ridge Road owners were being required to do more than the owners of parcels 3 and 4 on Research Road. Giese noted that the decision, in both cases, had been made by council, as staff did not recommend waiving the city standards in either situation.

Both Bram and Steve Curtis, who was a member of the audience, spoke against "urbanizing" all city streets, favoring retaining the "rural" nature of the roads in question. Councilmember Edward V. Putens suggested another deferral, to which Mary Clarke, another of the affected owners, stated that her group did not want a deferral.

Clarke cited a new Maryland law stating that owners can only be forced to pay for improvements that benefit them. She said that the owners did not want to be seen as waiving their right to challenge the road improvement requirement.

Giese replied that the legal basis is not whether the property owners like the improvements but whether they affect the value of the property.

Bram moved to rescind the ordinance. Giese suggested that the ordinance not be rescinded until council decides what it wants, to do. Mayor pro tem Thomas X. White suggested referring the ordinance to the city solicitor. The issue was resolved when council unanimously passed a motion directing staff to prepare an ordinance to rescind the 1980 ordinance, in association with which, the city staff and manager are to look into an alternate ordinance with equity with the Research Road properties.

Other Development Issues

In other development-related issues the council:

- Referred a request by Richard K. Reed of Fossett and Brugger to staff. Reed requested that the city road ordinance be amended to allow a prorated release of road improvement bonds as the work progresses, rather than requiring completion before any bonds are released. Reed claims the city is out of line with other county and municipal practices and cites the case of Greenwood developer Kenneth A. Roberts. According to Reed, only the final surface paving remains to be completed, which cannot be done until spring because of the weather. Reed claims this delay has resulted in Roberts' credit and bonding capacity being "substantially affected for an inordinate period of time."

- Approved a revised site plan for Maryland Trade Center III with a maximum gross square footage of 328,000, contingent upon the Advisory Planning Board's acceptance of the landscape plan, which APB felt they had not had sufficient time to review.

- Set a meeting for February 3 with the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission concerning the storm water management facility for the Smith-Ewing and Tidler tracts.

Cable Television

The city Public Access and Local Origination Committee has submitted a report to council recommending that the city establish a non-profit corporation to oversee public access to the cable system in Greenbelt. The committee drafted a set of by-laws and requested help from the city solicitor in drafting articles of incorporation. The committee requested a meeting with council to discuss these proposals. The meeting was scheduled for February 26.

Council approved the city's joining a county program for inspecting cable television installations. Under the agreement the city will pay five dollars per installation to the county from the franchise fee. In return the county will inspect approximately 20 to 25 percent of all new installations and will spot check existing installations. The city will request a quarterly report on the inspections, and if council is not satisfied with the program it can stop paying and the county will stop inspecting.

Changes in Election Procedures

Mayor Weidenfeld suggested two changes to the city's election procedures. He recommended that the city move the election to the first Tuesday in November, and that council serve for four-year terms instead of the current two-year terms. Weidenfeld stated that since the city has grown so much in recent years, the later date is necessary to allow adequate time for the candidates to campaign; and that since the council is now faced with many long-term issues, a four-year term would allow for continuity and increased efficiency. These issues were deferred to the next council meeting, at which time council will discuss suggestions from all members for election reform.

Other Actions

In other actions council:

- Directed staff to prepare a draft letter to the congressional delegation on the effects of the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings budget legislation and the proposed tax reform legislation.

- Scheduled a meeting for February 11 with Jim Cassels and the Housing Committee of the Greenbelt Consumer Co-op to discuss the city's memorial guidelines. At the last meeting, in response to a request for a memorial to James N. Wolfe, council directed staff to review the city's memorial guidelines. However, it was discovered that these guidelines had never been formally adopted by council.

- In response to a proposal by Weidenfeld in addition to requests by the APB and Steve Curtis, scheduled a work session for March 2 to discuss setting up a strategic planning and long-range budget process.

- Authorized the sending of a letter to Governor Hughes supporting the continued existence and independence of the Department of State Planning.

- Accepted APB report 383 on Roosevelt Center in which APB suggests that the city obtain further information before making decisions on the center. APB suggests a variety of financial and marketing data, details on the county parking standards versus the current situation, and an evaluation of the pros and cons of historic recognition and facade agreements. In addition, APB suggests the city explore the possibility and conditions of federal and state financing programs.

- Accepted PRAB report 1-86

on the use of the recreation center by the adult coffee hour group. PRAB found that senior citizens have "reasonable access" to all areas of the recreation center and that the size of the group does not warrant use of the large multipurpose room. PRAB recommends that the city pursue additional space for programming, suggesting the North End facility as a possible location.

- Rescheduled the council meetings for February and March to the second and fourth Mondays to avoid meeting on the Presidents' Day holiday and to maintain the every other week schedule.

COLD WINDS BUFFET PROTESTORS BUT HUGHES FEELS CHILL ALSO

by Katherine Keene

January 8, the day of the savings and loan rally in Annapolis and also the first day of the new state legislative session, was by no means like most other days. Few are so miserably, unremittingly cold. Although 22 had phoned Irene Hensel to go on the bus to take them to the rally, only 14 stalwarts showed up, bundled in heavy coats, scarves, gloves, and what they hoped were warm boots or shoes.

The Annapolis assembly point was the parking lot for the Navy stadium, a large open area where buildings did not obstruct the chill breezes from the bay. Perhaps 200 persons marched the 7/8 mile in the brisk wind to get to the rallying place near the capitol. At least they got some exercise as they marched briskly down the street chanting, "We want our money" over and over. A small group of fellow demonstrators and a large group of reporters and TV camera people waited for them. All looked most chilly and were stamping their feet to keep warm.

As soon as the demonstrators had assembled they were sent into the legislative office buildings to lobby for an hour. Most of us from Greenbelt went into Senator Leo Green's office where we were served hot coffee and tea. We knew we didn't have to lobby to convince him it would be nice to have access to our funds. He rightly felt, however, that we should know what the problems would be in getting relief from our predicament: the areas of the state that would not be sympathetic to our cause, the arguments their representatives would present, and how much hope we should have for surmounting these obstacles.

Standing on a chair, he reminded us that most of the savings and loan depositors involved live in Baltimore, Prince Georges, Montgomery, Howard and Charles counties, and there our support would lie. Delegates and senators from other areas were not going to be easy to convince that tax money might have to be spent on us. "Greed, simple greed — the state had a commitment," I heard the person next to me saying. I agreed, remembering the assertions made at the time Twin Pines got insured by MSSIC that the full faith and credit of the State were behind MSSIC and (which wasn't true, we found out) and that representatives of the State on the MSSIC Board would never let anything happen to our money.

Then at the appointed time we trooped out of the warm office into the wintry blast. The group had been told it couldn't have electricity to operate its P.A. equipment nor could we convene on the capitol steps. We stood instead in the mall—a windy area between the office buildings. Our organizers had some battery-powered P.A. equipment. We sang parodies of "Coming Round the Mountain," "Take Me Out to the Ball Game" and "Battle Hymn of the Republic" — none particularly complimentary to the governor — and listened to Dave Lange and another person speak on broken promises, misplaced trust, and simple lies. We applauded when we heard that Levitt had been sentenced to eighteen months in jail for overspending his allowance.

Meanwhile my feet had apparently congealed into solid ice. At least in that state they were beyond feeling. We sang more songs. Finally the featured speaker, Ralph Nader, arrived. I moved up to a strangely empty space quite near him. Of course we saw and heard him through a wall of TV microphones and cameras, but at least we were close enough to see that he was a young-looking person with dark eyes and dark hair. We liked his speech, particularly when he suggested that all the culprits should be imprisoned, but even more when he said we should build on our unhappy experience to make better regulatory laws.

Then it was over, and we gathered at the appointed spot to get on our bus. Only the bus wasn't there. The wind and cold were. Our bus driver appeared and a sort of wrecker from Greenbelt—the driver telling us our bus had broken down and we would have to wait for another that was even now on its way.

We were too cold to wait outdoors so we went inside and tried to thaw out. Eventually a smaller bus, also labeled "Greenbelt Connection," came and we piled in. We were stiff with cold, but yet glad we attended the rally.

ERHS Student Projects To Ride Space Shuttle

Of the seven student experiments to be carried out on NASA space shuttle flights contributed by students in Prince Georges County public high schools, two have been designed by students at Eleanor Roosevelt. The first of these will examine the origin and energy levels of certain cosmic rays through a device to detect and identify energized ions. The detector will consist of 180 lexan and CR-39 plastic sheets, each approximately 250 microns thick.

The second experiment will study the life cycle development of the nematode Caenorhabditis elegans under weightless conditions to determine if any abnormalities or mutations will occur in the organism's development. The life cycle will be halted four times during the flight to study the mutation rates and distribution of the life stages of the population.

The payload compartment area for housing the experiments during the space shuttle flight has been donated by Orbital Systems, Ltd. of Lanham, which is also constructing the support structure inside the protective canister and completing the electrical work necessary for operating the experiments. The firm has been providing technical advice and consultation for the student teams since the projects began more than three years ago under NASA's student research effort.

the vigorous pursuit of civil litigation against the former operators of these institutions and other parties."

In response, Irene Szafran, one of the 10 people attending the meeting, commented: "I am concerned that the reputation of Maryland rests on how well the General Assembly handles this crisis. It's a real burden for the representatives to decide how much to help the depositors and how much to protect the taxpayers," she said.

Answering her comment, Pitkin said, "The taxpayers are going to pay. The Transportation Trust Fund is taxpayers money."

Because the citizens have no authority, Eunice Coxon reminded the representatives that it is the "job of elected officials to watch the bankers." Coxon's main concern was how or why the savings and loan industry became a crisis.

The short 90-day term of the legislature, low budget for support staff and misinformation were listed as reasons for the delegates' apparent ignorance of the impending crisis.

"When the regulators come in and lie to you, what do you do?" Devlin asked.

Senator Green, who has been involved with the savings and loans since November 1984, heard only positive reports from the heads of savings and loan institutions and MSSIC. "Four or five times in early 1985 both the commissioner and MSSIC came before our committee and said they had no problems. They lied to us."

"I don't know how we get the right answers from liars," Pitkin said. With only $11,000 a year for staff, the state's department responsible for policing the savings and loans has no one to investigate for them, Pitkin explained.

After overcoming the savings and loan hurdle, the Prince Georges delegation's next big agenda item is providing funding for magnet schools. A utility tax will be proposed to pay for education, Ryan said. Each percentage will bring in $4 million.

Textbooks are sorely needed, Pitkin said. "One of the rationales for the utility tax is that every jurisdiction surrounding Prince Georges has the utility tax. This tax doesn't single anybody out; it's equitable all across the board."

"Everything is interrelated," Devlin said. "Schools tie in with economic growth, which ties into the savings and loan issue."

Creating a budget, according to Green, creates "uniform distribution of dissatisfaction."

"My function on the Ways and Means committee will be to try to provide more money for Prince Georges County," Devlin said. "This is very difficult to do because we have TRIM, which in its present form limits the tax rate permanently." To make his point he quoted a friend on the committee as saying "you expect people in Towson to dig into their pockets to fund the Prince Georges schools when you won't."

Green also agreed that his number one priority was securing educational funds. He is waiting for the governor's budget to be presented on January 15 to know how much the county will be receiving.

Other issues briefly discussed were the Chesapeake Bay cleanup, hospital bed closures and the divorce bill to keep big oil companies from shutting down independent service stations like the Greenbelt Consumer Cooperative Service Station represented by Thomas Lammons.

First Tree in Greenbelt East Won't Be Last

by Helen Shropshire

Wasn't our Holiday (Greenbelt East) tree beautiful? It made a nice holiday atmosphere, as you were coming down Greenbelt Road or leaving Greenbriar. We held a tree lighting ceremony on Friday, December 6, as part of the Festival of Lights Ceremony held at the center of Greenbelt. We hope to make this a joint venture each year sponsored by the Greenbelt East Association, which was organized in 1985, is made up of Greenbriar, Hunting Ridge and Windsor Green. The ceremony included messages from Greenbriar Community Association President, Mike Vaccaro; Vice President of Windsor Green Board of Directors, Tom Malone; and Ed Putens, Councilman from Greenbelt. Mike Vaccaro was assisted in the tree lighting ceremony by one of Santa's elves (Jay Vaccaro). As Mike stated in his message, "The Greenbelt East tree will grow just as we hope the Greenbelt East Association will grow." This ceremony was an excellent beginning.

How did this idea come about? The Landscape Committee received an anonymous letter stating, "While watching the cable cast of the Greenbriar candidates night, I was glad to see the three civic associations in Greenbelt East leading the question and answer segment and the following thought came to my mind. The City has a living Christmas tree in the center—why not a living tree in Greenbelt East? On the knoll in front of the 'Greenbriar' wall between the group of trees and the azalea bed, there is an old tree stump which could be taken out and the tree put there. We could invite the other Greenbelt East civic Associations and the City to participate in the decorating and lighting of the tree. A Christmas tree at this spot would be visible for all during the season of 'Good Will Toward Men' for the people traveling Greenbelt Road."

The letter was taken to the GCA Board of Directors, who approved the idea and gave the responsibility to the Landscape Committee to initiate. Contact was made with the City of Greenbelt, Windsor Green and Hunting Ridge. With the help of many people, a 7-foot Blue Colorado Spruce was purchased, planted, and decorated. Dorothy Pyles planned and served hot chocolate and cookies after the ceremony. The combined efforts of a group of Greenbriar people resulted in a successful first annual tree lighting ceremony. Approximately 50 people attended.

Who wrote the anonymous letter? Now it can be told—none other than one of the Landscape Committee members, Liz Tucker.

Slight Changes In Bus Schedule

The F6 Metrobus schedule will change slightly beginning Monday, January 27. Most buses will now leave Greenbelt two to five minutes earlier so people are a lerted to be at the bus stops earlier. However, the last two buses to leave Greenbelt at night will leave seven minutes later, at 9:14 and 10:14 p.m.

The F6 runs from Greenbelt to Silver Spring by way of Beltway Plaza and Prince Georges Plaza. Times will vary slightly at these and other stops on the way.

New schedules can be obtained from the drivers, at Metrorail stations or by calling 637-1261.

Two changes will also be made on the C2 line which runs from Beltway Plaza to Prince Georges Plaza, Langley Park, Wheaton Plaza and the Twinbrook Metro station. The weekday trip leaving Beltway Plaza at 7:05 p.m. to Wheaton Plaza will be extended to Twinbrook. The weekday trip leaving Twinbrook at 8:10 p.m. will be changed to leave Twinbrook at 8:15 p.m.

School Board Gets Budget

Prince Georges County School Superintendent John A. Murphy has proposed to the Board of Education a budget of $381.3 million for fiscal year 1987, a 6.5 percent increase over the current year.

The budget does not include the cost of salary improvements that may result from contract negotiations this year with organizations representing employees.

In a letter to the Board of Education chairman, Dr. Murphy said the budget proposal was "developed against a background of continuing funding shortages" that required him to severely limit requests for additional funding.

The superintendent's recommendations seek $23.4 million beyond this year's budget and target selected programs and projects designed to improve current operations and to maintain essential services. This includes $12.9 million to continue and expand programs under the desegregation effort at selected schools. Chief among proposed systemwide improvements would be further reduction in class size.

A public hearing on the proposed budget has been scheduled by the Board of Education on Tues., January 28 at 7:30 p.m. at High Point High School, 3601 Powder Mill Rd., Beltsville.

Anyone wishing to testify at the hearing should register in advance by calling 952-4324. Time limitations for speakers will be three minutes for an individual, five for a group representative.

Police Blotter

Based on Information
Released by the Greenbelt
Police Department

About 8 p.m. on January 11, Best Products at Beltway Plaza was robbed by a man who showed a note to a jewelry salesperson stating he had a gun in his pocket. He fled with jewelry valued at approximately $40,000.00. He was described as a black male in his late twenties or early thirties, 5'11", 165 lbs., wearing a dark green trench coat.

A young woman resident of 7038 Hanover Parkway was arrested on January 11 by Pfc. John Squires for a narcotics violation when Squires stopped a speeding car on Hanover Parkway and noticed a baggie of suspected PCP on the floor of the car. The young woman, who was a passenger in the car, was found to have a quantity of suspected PCP in her possession.

On January 13 two nonresident men involved in a domestic disturbance at 6105 Breezewood Ct. were arrested, one charged with possessing a concealed deadly weapon, the other with tampering with an auto. The man arrested on the weapon charge was turned over to the Prince Georges County Sheriff's Department for service of a warrant held there charging him with battery.

On January 11 several autos were vandalized at various locations in the Springhill Lake area. Windows were broken, antennas snapped off and windshield wipers bent. Two wheels and tires were stolen from an auto parked in the 7000 block of Mandan Rd. on January 12. On the same date two tires were slashed on a car on Mandan Rd.

About 5:30 a.m., January 11 a nonresident was arrested in the 5900 block of Cherrywood Terrace for being drunk in public.

Revolutionary Insituform Process Used to Repair City Storm Sewers

by Elaine Skolnik

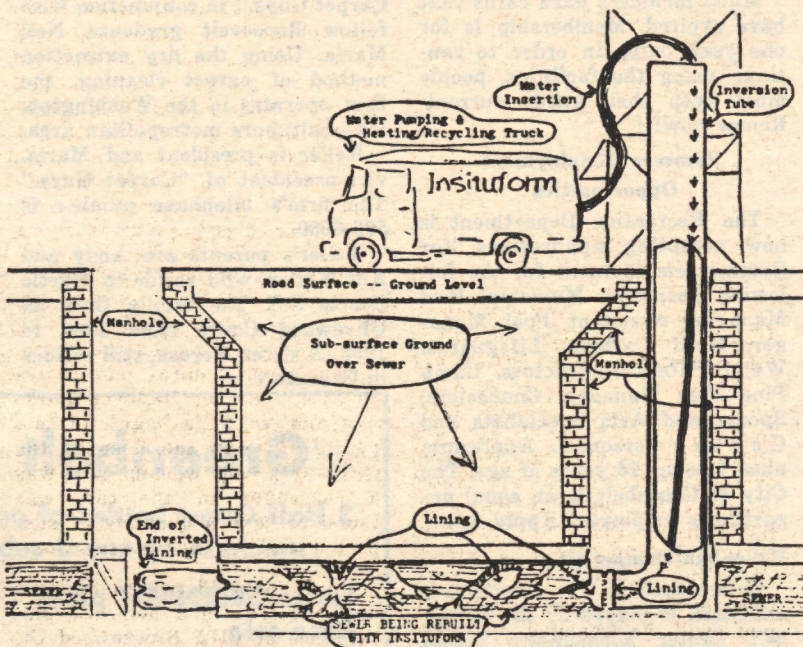

Since December 1980 portions of Greenbelt's sanitary sewer system have been undergoing restoration to prevent ground and surface water from infiltrating the pipelines and mixing with sewage. Eliminating points of possible leakage will provide more capacity at regional sewage treatment plants and result in significant savings of dollars, according to a spokesperson for the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission (WSSC).

Ground and surface water do not need to be treated. However, because of seepage into the system, this water comprises about 30% of the sewage carried to treatment plants in Prince Georges and Montgomery counties.

Leakage into the pipelines via cracks and joint faults can occur by "infiltration" when the ground water table is higher than the sanitary sewer pipelines. This happens during heavy and prolonged rain storms. Seepage also occurs by "inflow" when water from rain and other precipitation enters the pipes through cross connections to storm sewer and roof and foundation drains. In some cases contractors have hooked up the storm sewer directly to the sanitary sewer.

The restoration work in Greenbelt is part of a broad WSSC program to restore older sewer mains in the bi-county sanitary district. Modernization of the pipelines is being carried out by the innovative Insituform process. This method is preferred over the more costly and disruptive conventional excavation and pipelaying and can be accomplished in a shorter period of time. Excavation, seldom used, was necessary in a portion of the sewer main in Roosevelt Center.

Arthur E. Lang, president and chief executive officer of Insituform East said, "In the beginning Insituform was the pioneer and WSSC the guinea pig." Today, he observed. Insituform "is one of the most widely used pipe reconstruction processes in the United States. The operation is used by every large municipality and water and sewer district." Lang noted that there are now ten licensees nationwide and that the firm has been lauded by Forbes and Fortune magazines. Insituform was developed in England in 1970; Insituform East was the first to implement the process in the United States.

While this work is taking place on a section of sewer, the subject pipeline has to be blocked off at either end to "dry out the sewer for processing. Provision is made by the use of pumps and portable hoses to by-pass the working section of pipe so that there is no backup of sewage upstream of the project. Normal sewer service is maintained for all customers upstream of the sewer section on which the Insituform treatment is being applied.

The ongoing reconstruction project is funded by WSSC and carried out under contract by Insituform East. Richard Thomasson, head of WSSC's system maintenance division said, "A certain amount is funded each year. . . . We try to spread out the work in Prince Georges and Montgomery counties." He explained that selection of the areas to be restored is based on the evaluation of the pipelines. Those in the worst shape—cracks or broken or slipped joints—are prime candidates for reconstruction.

WSSC officials have been enthusiastic about the Insituform process, which provides for cleaning of the old sewers and the insertion of a one-piece polyester lining in the pipe, creating a new, watertight, smooth-surfaced, long-lasting (30 to 50 years) pipe within the old sewer.

After a specially treated liner is inserted, a remote-control cutter and TV camera are inserted into the pipe and all lateral connections are cut out. The liner reduces the dimensions of the sanitary sewer by approximately a one-half inch total, but because its inside surface is a smooth polyurethane, the flow in pipes which have undergone this process is increased by 10 to 15 percent.

Actual work on a sewer begins in the morning at approximately 9 a.m. While a particular section of sewer is undergoing this process, water at adjacent homes is turned off until about midnight. Notices are given to homeowners before the operation begins. Previously, work was accomplished during the night but Lang said there were complaints about the noise coming from Insituform trucks that are on the scene throughout the process.

guments, council decided to pass a motion supporting the staff's position, with the further amendment of mayor pro tem Tom White that staff report first to council on its proposed course before acting. White commented that Brown had "catalyzed discussion of the problems with the lake" and expressed his own feeling that "I'm not sure yet that we have a solution."

Before the discussion ended, further contributions were made by Lakeside resident James Brake. He suggested periodic measurements of the distance from a nearby tree to the shoreline, to establish whether there is indeed erosion, and urged that the settlement ponds just east of the lake intakes be kept dredged out. Giese agreed the first idea would be useful but noted that "dredging can be a very difficult job," subject to new sedimentation laws and involving hauling and storage facilities.

Liquor Licensing

An application for a BLX liquor license has been filed for a dance/video operation to be located in the Beltway Plaza, at the present location of the Academy Six movie theaters. City attorney Robert Manzi reported that after much effort the staff has been able to get only a minimum amount of information on what the applicants propose. They have spoken of a "small restaurant with a lounge, but seem vague on the actual size of the establishment, how many of the movie theaters would be displaced, etc. He described the BLX "luxury license" as requiring at least a half million dollar investment, so that it is not clear how much of a disco or video operation would be involved. Some council members pointed out that only a token restaurant might need to be included to qualify the project for a BLX license under present regulations.

There would also be an impact on parking and traffic flow in the nearby area. For these reasons, and in view of the lack of information provided, the staff recommended that the city express its concern to the Liquor Board and request it be given an opportunity to review the application and

Can Fluoride Be Added To Milk?

Research conducted at the University of Georgia has shown that children who drank fluoridated milk showed a 70% decrease in decay. Another study is underway in New Orleans to see if fluoride can offset the effect of chocolate milk on teeth. The fluoride does not affect the flavor or shelf life of the milk, yet it can benefit both unerupted teeth as well as those already in the mouth.

Interest in fluoridated milk is two-fold. First, in underdeveloped nations with no central water supply, this can offer a satisfactory alternative to fluoridated water which requires a sophisticated control system. Second, only half of the U.S. population has fluoridated water. Even in areas with fluoridated water, many people use bottled water rather than central systems for drinking and cooking. Fluoridated milk offers a logical and safe alternative means of providing the benefits of fluoride.

To control the possible excessive consumption of fluoride, its distribution must be controlled. The best way would be as part of a school lunch program or in day care centers for pre-schoolers.

Moisture Discussed At GHI Meeting

by Mavis Fletcher

At its January 9 meeting the Greenbelt Homes, Inc. (GHI) board of directors again tackled the longstanding problems of moisture in the brick and block homes, drainage in the 6-court of Hillside, and were presented with the staff's "Answer Book."

Moisture Problems

The board took up a complaint about severe moisture problems brought up at the last meeting by a member who lives in a block home. Colton presented an analysis of the causes of the problems and its severity in each type of home and what is being done to combat it. He said there are only rare problems in frame homes, some cases of moisture in brick homes, and by far the most severe cases are in block homes. All the problems are basically caused by measures taken to "tighten up" the homes during the rehabilitation program. Since the block homes are the most airtight now and, due to their construction, have no dead air space in the walls, the moisture generated within the home (showers, cooking, etc.) condenses on the cold interior walls and produces the "icebox" effect the member had complained about at the earlier meeting.

Colton said also that the solution is made more difficult by the lack of a common basis for the problems — some block homes have problems but others do not; some end units have problems but others do not, for example. Several board members agreed that "life style" has a good deal to do with the severity of the problem.

Colton listed the remedies which he said were working in some cases, chiefly air-to-air heat exchangers and kitchen and bathroom fans. In three test rows, roof exhaust vents were installed and are being tested this winter. Colton said he thinks they will have some answers by April. After lengthy discussion, the board voted to instruct management to bring back a financing proposal for installation of ventilation measures for all brick and block homes.

6 Court of Hillside

The board unanimously voted to award a contract to Geotechnical Services to install footing and foundation drains in one row of the 6 Court of Hillside. The buildings in the row have been moving due to water-caused expansion of the clay underlying the building. According to Colton, Geotechnical Services is prepared to warrant the system they have devised. The contract price is not to exceed $15,000.

Answer Book

The board got its first look at a new tool for collating and codifying the maintenance policies of the corporation. Called the "Answer Book," this effort grew out of an Audit Committee investigation which concluded that members sometimes have trouble knowing (or getting answers to questions about) what maintenance is done by GHI and what maintenance is the responsibility of the members.

The Answer Book will supply the correct and consistent policy documentation. The first version will be a book for the board and the staff and will contain considerable information on the history of the policies. Later an abbreviated version, contain-

Goddard Visitors Center Offers Weekend Lectures

A series of weekend lectures on NASA programs, plus live video highlights of the Voyager 2/Uranus encounter and of Teacher-In-Space activities, will be available to the public at Goddard Space Flight Center through January 31.

Lectures and video transmissions take place in the Visitors Center (VC) Auditorium, open Wednesday through Sunday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

NASA's Voyager 2 will make its closest approach to Uranus, flying 81,500 kilometers (50,600 miles) above the cloud tops of the seventh planet, at 1 p.m. EST, January 24. It will be the first spacecraft to reach the planet, providing the first close look at this system.

The Voyager 2/Uranus encounter, which began November 4, 1985, continues through February 24, 1986. During that period, the spacecraft's 11 instruments will perform close-range studies of the planet, its five known satellites and nine rings. The spacecraft also will reach for a planetary magnetic field, new satellites and new rings.

On Saturday, January 25 at 2 p.m., James Barrowman, from Goddard's Attached Shuttle Payloads Project, will illustrate the uniqueness of the Spartan spacecraft. The Goddard-managed Spartan conducts space exploration with efficiency and simplicity. Deployable and retrievable from the shuttle, Spartan carries out research like major satellite missions, but more economically. Spartan will observe Halley's Comet during the 51-L mission.

On Sunday, January 26 at 2 p.m., Dr. Ronald Lepping, co-investigator on the Voyager 2 Project, will provide an update on the encounter and results from one of the experiments, information which should give new insight on the physical makeup of the planet.

The first Teacher-In-Space, Christa McAuliffe, will teach two lessons from the orbiting Shuttle Challenger:

McAuliffe's first lesson, "The Ultimate Field Trip," will allow students to compare daily life on the Shuttle with that on Earth. Her second lesson, "Where We've Been, Where We're Going, Why?" will help the audience understand why people use and explore space.

Both lessons will be transmitted on Thursday, January 31, at 11:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. EST, respectively. The date and times could change if the launch is delayed.

These lectures and video transmissions offer the public a unique chance to learn about the space program first hand from the experts and to share the excitement of today's space exploration as it happens. Come to Goddard, take a look at Uranus and find out about space from space as the first teacher in orbit takes the classroom to the cosmos.

For more information call the Visitors Center, 344-8981.

ing questions and answers, will be issued to the members.

The board ended the meeting by reminding those present that the special membership meeting to amend the GHI bylaws will be held on January 21 at 8 p.m. in the City Council chambers. A board workshop on occupancy criteria will be held on January 30 at 8 p.m. in the board room. The meeting is open to members. The next regular meeting of the board will be on January 23.

Philharmonic in Concert

High School Blood Donors Receive Bullets Tickets

On Friday, January 17, on Center Court at the Capital Centre, representatives from the Bullets basketball team showed their appreciation and gratitude to the high school students of Prince Georges County for the outstanding achievements in blood donations.

At the half-time ceremonial presentation, Paul Shelby, Chairman of Prince Georges Board of Education, and Stacy Anderson, a senior at Roosevelt High School in Greenbelt, received tickets from the Bullets which will enable high school blood donors of the county to receive one complimentary basketball game ticket.

Last year, county high school students donated over 1,000 units of blood. School bloodmobile coordinators now hope to top last year's figures.

According to Red Cross officials, "Everyone at the Capital Centre wishes to thank the students in our county who give something of themselves to others, so that lives may be saved or enhanced. These students are V.I.P.'s - Very Important People."

Volunteers Needed

Boys & Girls Club Our Neighbors

by Sue Cornelius

Prince Georges County Boys and Girls Club held their annual Appreciation Dinner and Awards Dinner last Friday evening in Forestville; and former Redskin, Pete Wysocki, was featured. Several Greenbelters were honored, including Greenbelt Boys and Girls Club president, Mike Moore.

Jonathan Schachter won the Boy of the Year Award after participating in many sports in the Club, with a good attitude towards himself, his teammates, and coaches as well as being a developed athlete. Frank Swahl, a Greenbelt Soccer Coach for many years, also received a Distinguished Service Award, which he richly deserved, after coaching two soccer teams each season for the past two seasons.

Mike Moore, who received the Distinguished Service Award, has been president of the Greenbelt Club for several years and has also coached football. Both men have been valuable to the Club over the years, and the adults and children they touch are deeply appreciative of their time, energy and devotion.
